

May 21, 1984

A SHADY SPOT under the nose of a C-130 National Guard transport plane drew more than its share of sweating spectators yesterday afternoon during Forsyth County's first Aviation Day celebration at Smith Reynolds Airport. Displays of military and civilian aircraft, stunt flying and parachute jumping kept about 15,000 visitors entertained throughout the afternoon, after local officials cut the ribbon on the newly renovated airport terminal.

Sentinel Photo by Tom Rogers

